South-Carolina Gazette.

From MONDAY April 8th, to MONDAY April 15th, 1751.

Mr. Timothy,

The underwritten Lines are the Production of a Friend and Correspondent, who conceals himself under a borrowed Character: If you think them worthy a Place in your Gazette, your Insertion will exhibit a Token of Friendship, and oblige,

Your constant Reader, and unknown humble Servant,
F——— S———.

A PHILOSOPHICAL CONTEMPLATION.

CALMLY repos'd upon a pleasant Green,
My Soul compos'd, and all my Thoughts serene,
Just as the Sun withdrew his chearful Light,
And lovely VENUS shew'd th' approach of Night;
E're the pale Moon in her full Glory shone,
Or twinkling Stars brought on the nightly Noon;
The feather'd Choirs their Evening Anthems sung,
By the Woods echo'd as they went along:
I turn'd my Thoughts to contemplate that NAME,
Which first compos'd this universal Frame.
Which o'er the Chaos spread the chearing Light,
And from the Arts drove the darksome Night.
—'Twas at his Word, that this material Frame,
From out of Nothing, into Being came.
He bid the various Constellations roll,
In various Forms, near, or not near the Pole.
A twinkling Set adorn'd the Zodiac round
And Years and Months to viewing Mortals bound.
Orion here girds on his Sword, and there
Around the Pole, majestic stalks the Bear.
—In diff'rent Spaces diff'rent Suns he plac'd,
And (doubtless) each with its own Planets grac'd.
—He spoke th' omnific Word, and lo! around
Our Sun, the Planets danc'd their circling round.
The first and nearest to the central Sun,
Swift-moving Mercury his Circle run.
Next, in a larger Orb admir'd by all,
Love's Goddess, Venus, roll'd her splendid Ball,
Then sprang the Earth attended by the Moon,
And circumscrib'd her Area round the Sun.
Now fiery Mars proceeds with slower pace,
Confess'd the Ruler of the warlike Race.
And Jove majestic, with a shining Train
Of guarding Planets cut th' aetherial Plain.
The sixth and last, slow Saturn, lagg'd along,
The utmost of the planetary Throng;
A mighty Ring, and five fair Moons combine
T' adorn his Sphere, and glorious round him shine.
The wand'ring Comets at his Fiant stray,
Through Orbs excentric trace their mazy Way,
Mistaken Mortals, half bewitch'd with Fear,
Make them Portents of Famine, Plagues, and War;
Though sure the Music of the Spheres ne'er jars,
Or Worlds with Worlds engage in hostile Wars.
—See, through the moral World the Power of Love
Runs, and combines all here, and all above:
Thus Gravitation, Nature's gen'ral Soul,
Fixes each Globe and binds it to the whole;
While Motion's Laws (immortal Newton found)
Whirl 'em their Orbits, and their Axis round,
Wisdom immense is shown in every Ball,
And One Almighty GOD is seen in All.

PHYLANDER.

LONDON, November 4.

HIS Majesty, who embarked on the 3d at Helvoetsluys, landed about 2 o'clock at Harwich, and at 11 at night came to St. James's.

Nov. 6. The commissioners of Westminster bridge gave public notice in the news-papers, that the said bridge should be opened for all passengers, horses, and carriages, on the 18th instant.

Nov. 7. In demolishing the old buildings in the broad sanctuary Westminster, were discovered the remains of an antique wall, supposed to be part of an old Saxon temple dedicated to Apollo.

Nov. 8. The lord mayor, aldermen, and commons waited on his majesty at St. James's, to congratulate him on his happy return, and the birth of a prince, and the recorder made their compliments in the following speech:

May it please your Majesty,

WE the lord mayor, aldermen and commons of the city of London, in common council assembled, your majesty's truly loyal and faithful subjects, humbly beg leave, with most respectful duty to congratulate your majesty on your safe return to your British dominions, and with joy to express the satisfaction we derive from your royal presence amongst us.

As our zeal and affection for your royal house have the next place in our hearts to our zeal and affection for your royal person, we gladly embrace this first opportunity of congratulating your majesty on the birth of another prince: An additional security for perpetuating the protestant succession and the British constitution, the greatest blessings these kingdoms can enjoy.

We want words to express the grateful sense we have of your majesty's gracious acceptance of our duty, and your majesty's repeated declarations of favour and protection: It shall be our constant prayer, that your majesty may long reign over a free, grateful, and obedient people, and that the sceptre of these kingdoms may be swayed to the end of time by a race of princes descended from your majesty, and inheritors of those virtues which adorn your royal person.

HIS MAJESTY'S ANSWER.

I Thank you for this very affectionate address, my care and attention shall never be wanting for the support of the trade and commerce of my subjects; and the city of London may always depend upon my favour and protection.

Nov. 13. The commissioners of the new bridge at Westminster appointed a number of watchmen to guard the said bridge, and ordered 32 lamps of a particular size to be fixed thereon.

Nov. 16. His Prussian majesty paid 88,000*l.* sterling on the Silesian loan.

Nov. 17. The undertakers of the new foundery at Chelsea proved one of their new invented cannons, a six pounder, weighing only 350 lb. on Hampstead Heath. The piece which was fired with ball, was first charged with 4 pounds of powder, the second time with 5 pounds, the third with 5 pounds and half, and the fourth with 6 pounds and half. The cannon was not in the least impaired, which was very surprising, as the quantity of powder requir'd for a charge is but one pound and a quarter.

The new bridge at Westminster was open'd at 12 o'clock at night with a procession of several gentlemen of that city, the chief artificers of the work, and a crowd of spectators, preceded by trumpets, kettle drums, &c. with guns firing during the ceremony.

——The first stone of this bridge was laid Jan. 29, 1738-9. It is allow'd by good judges of architecture, to be one of the grandest bridges in the world.

Nov. 18. Westminster was all day like a fair with people going to view the bridge and pass over it, and at evening the crowd was to so great, that multitudes were obliged to croſs the water in boats.

Nov. 22. The parliament was further protogued to the 22d of January next.

Nov. 28. The Argyle and Bedford buſſes, that had been fiſhing off the northweſt of Scotland, arrived in the river with as great cargoes of fiſh, as were taken off Shetland in June and July fiſhings.

Nov. 30. The learned world has long doubted of the truth of the accounts given by northern hiſtorians of a colony ſettled in Greenland, to the northward of Davis's ſtreights; but the miſſionaries in that country have diſcovered, on the other ſide of the mountains, a numerous colony, that appear to be chriſtians, and, by their frequent uſe of the croſs, prove, that they are deſcendents of perſons ſettled there before Luther's reformation.

An order was made at the war office, that all foreign gariſons ... all be relieved once in five years.

Two deputies from the Moravians, arrived at Inverary, the capital of Argyllſhire, in Scotland, have view'd the adjacent country for chuſing a proper place to ſettle a colony.

Nov. 10th, Died Mr. Edward Bright, at Malden in Eſſex, aged 30; he was ſuppoſed to be the largeſt man living, or perhaps that ever lived in this iſland: He weighed 42 ſtone and a half, horſeman's weight; and not being very tall, his body was of an aſtoniſhing bulk, and his legs were as big as a middling man's body. He was an active man till a year or two before his death, when his corpulency ſo overpower'd his ſtrength, that his life was a burthen, and his death a deliverance. His coffin was three feet ſix inches over the ſhoulders, ſix feet ſeven inches long, and three feet deep; a way was cut thro' the wall and ſtair-caſe, to let the corpſe down into the ſhop; it was drawn upon a carriage to the church, and let down into the vault by the help of a ſlider and pulleys. — He left a widow big with her ſixth child.
